OVERVIEW

Dental Education Unit, Sri Venkateshwaraa Dental College, is constituted by the faculty members on various aspects of teaching and evaluating undergraduate and postgraduate students along with curriculum enrichment and administration. This committee is exclusively formed to improve the quality of the teaching and learning methods making the edification a pleasant experience for the undergraduate and postgraduate students.

OBJECTIVES

- The Dental Education Unit of Sri Venkateshwaraa Dental College, focuses on conducting Training workshop for the internal faculty members of our institutions.
- The unit plays a key role by conducting continuing dental education as the development programs for both the faculties and students.
- To conduct First BDS, Interns orientation program and Student Clinician Orientation Programme for third BDS students.
- To conduct Postgraduate Orientation Program like Pedagogy training for postgraduates, Research methodology and training on dissertation writing and reference management.
- And implementing lesson plan system for all departments of dental college.

POLICY FOR TEACHING METHODOLOGIES POLICY STATEMENT:

SVDC has adopted a variety of standard teaching methodologies for delivery of the curriculum, aligning these to achieve the defined learning outcomes of the courses and program.

1. Faculty members are responsible for utilizing contemporary and innovative teaching methods based on an integrated curriculum, which enables their thorough preparation for teaching and preparing students for their future profession.

ARIYUR, PUDUCHERRY - 605 102

2. Faculty and staff are expected to meet students' diverse learning styles and expectations by ensuring the availability of contemporary resources and an appropriate learning environment to achieve the defined learning outcomes.
3. Course descriptions must be distributed to students at the beginning of each academic year.
4. Teaching methodologies should enable the transfer of foundation knowledge to the student to facilitate achieving learning outcomes.
5. All teaching methodologies should be integrated to allow progressive reinforcement of foundation knowledge in the curriculum, while minimizing unnecessary redundancy.
6. Teaching methodologies should work collaboratively so that information is structured in a way that demonstrates relationships between key concepts.
7. Teaching methodologies used for each course should incorporate a horizontal integration to facilitate achievement of the learning outcomes.
8. Teaching methodologies used for each course should incorporate a vertical integration by linking to other types of learning experiences in the curriculum e.g. small group discussions, clinical demonstrations, etc.

TEACHING METHODOLOGIES:

1. Interactive Lectures: Interactive lectures during which the instructor delivers information by asking questions and providing feedback on their responses.

2. Small Group Discussions: The students are divided into small groups (5-7 students), with each group assigned a certain task to be completed in a predetermined amount of time. This may include a clinical scenario, a research paper, or other exercise.
3. Laboratory Demonstrations: The instructor demonstrates procedures to the students in step-by-step fashion, and students are subsequently expected to duplicate the procedure at the acceptable level of performance.
4. Clinical Demonstrations: The instructor discusses and demonstrates the management of clinical scenarios, beginning with simple cases and progressing to cases that are more complicated.
5. Assignment-Based Learning: Assignments that are predetermined in the course syllabus are distributed among the students either individually or in groups. The instructor explains and discusses the outline of each assignment with each group of students, who are expected to complete the assignment within a predetermined period of time. After evaluating the completed assignments, the instructor gives feedback to each individual or each student group.
6. E-Learning: Selected courses are delivered online as e-courses. Each e-course includes the syllabus, the power point presentations for the lectures, the assignments, suggested questions and answers.
